1940s USAF Flight Surgeon's Account of E. T. Autopsy

© 2006 by Linda Moulton Howe

See: 11/19/03 Earthfiles "1954 War Department Training Manual:

Extraterrestrial Entities and Technology, Recovery and Disposal - Reasons Manual

Is Authentic" with Robert Wood, Ph.D. This Majestic-12 training manual's 32 pages of text and drawings first appeared on 35mm black and white negative film in a package postmarked March 7, 1994, from LaCrosse, Wisconsin, and addressed to Don Berliner at the Fund for UFO Research in Maryland. Bob Wood, Ph.D., aerospace engineer at McDonnell-Douglas, took on the work to print the negatives for analysis.

July 27, 2006 Central Ohio - On April 24, 2006, I received an email from a Central Ohio businessman named Ronald SeCoy. He is 59-years-old, has a Bachelor's degree in Clinical Psychology from Ohio University, but has worked in a variety of businesses ranging from restaurants to retail since graduating. He is a family man with three children and considers himself a devout Christian. He has asked that his home city and company's name be withheld for protection. His first email stated:

"I used to work for a man in Dayton, Ohio. Retired US Air Force flight surgeon who in a moment of great stress and emotional breakdown, told me he was one of five military doctors called in to look at two alien bodies at Wright-Patterson base."

By June, I emailed Mr. SeCoy and asked for more information. He wrote back:

"He lived in Dayton always. He was 'THE' flight surgeon for an entire SAC wing. He did not tell me precisely when it occurred, just that it had happened in the late 1940s near the time of Roswell.

"He said how he got phoned while sleeping, had to rush out to base, that three generals were there, what he had to sign, threats made, that 5 doctors were involved, only two doctors actually touched the bodies. That one (alien) was dead, but showed no injuries. One was burned and had a 'horrible hole in one leg' with this anguished look locked upon its face in death."

Earthfiles, news category.

Before 1947, the large U. S. Air Force base in Dayton, Ohio, had been named after Orville and Wilbur Wright in honor of their flying the first airplane. Up to 1947, the base was called Wright Field. But that year, the United States government created the United States Air Force, eliminating the Army Air Forces. Also in 1947, the Air Force combined Wright Field with nearby Patterson Field and created Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

In 1947, the U. S. government combined the original Wright Field, northeast of Dayton in Fairborn, with nearby Patterson Field to create Wright-Patterson AFB.

Ronald SeCoy's e-mail continued about the Wright-Patterson Flight Surgeon:

"He was a devout Catholic and this had destroyed his belief system. He was mad because (he said), 'I'm just a simple doctor. Not a specialist. Not a pathologist. Why did they do this to me?' He was furious at the government for involving him and for ruining his life and threatening him. He was terrified of the government. He made me swear never to tell anyone.

"So for years I never really did tell people his story. But to the best of my knowledge, I think the public deserves to know."

[Editor's Note: Ohio History Central reports, "Beginning in the 1910s, with World War I's outbreak, the United States government began investigating the use of airplanes in war. In 1913, President Woodrow Wilson created the National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics (NACA). This committee suggested establishing a center to research the use of airplanes in the military and also to seek improvements in airplane technology. Due to the presence of several automobile and aircraft plants in Ohio, the NACA established this center at McCook Field in Dayton, Ohio.

By 1924, the United States Air Corps had outgrown the facilities at McCook Field. Hoping to keep the Air Corps in Dayton, the city officials and residents donated 5,250 acres of land on the city's outskirts. The Air Corps accepted the land and built Wright Field on the site. The base was named Wright Field to honor Orville and Wilbur Wright's contributions to flight. The Wrights had tested many of their early airplanes in the vicinity of Wright Field. Wright Field formally opened in 1927.

In 1926, the United States government created the Army Air Corps, replacing the earlier Air Corps. The Army Air Corps stationed its Materiel Division at Wright Field. Here, scientists continued to improve aircraft. The scientists also realized that they had to work together to create the best possible plane. Before creation of the Army Air Corps, researchers studied individual parts of the plane, like engines, armor, wings, and propellers. Now scientists continued to specialize in individual components of planes, but they realized that changes in a plane's armor would affect all other parts of the plane. The same held true for changes in engines, wings, and the other parts of a plane. Under the Army Air Corps, the researchers now kept a dialog open between the various experts.

Despite Wright Field's existence, the United States Army Air Corps entered World War II at a severe disadvantage numerically and technologically when compared to the Air Forces of other nations. To help overcome these weaknesses, the federal government, in 1940, designated 300 million dollars to improve Wright Field and to create an Air Corps with at least 5,500 planes. In 1941, only forty buildings existed at Wright Field, but by 1944, the airfield consisted of more than three hundred buildings. During World War II, research continued on airplanes, with much attention focused upon improving the horsepower of plane engines, airplanes' ranges and maneuverability, safety features for crews, and weapons. Workers at Wright Field helped to design and to construct numerous airplanes, such as the C-47 Skytrain, the C-54 Skymaster, the Curtiss C-46 Commando, the Sikorsky XR-4, the Curtiss-Wright P-40 Warhawk, the B-24 Liberator, and the B-29 Superfortress, among many others, during World War II.

Upon World War II's conclusion, Wright Field continued to play a major role in aircraft research and construction. In 1947, the United States government created the United States Air Force, eliminating the Army Air Forces and establishing a new branch to the United States military. That same year, the Air Force combined Wright Field with nearby Patterson Field, creating Wright-

Patterson Air Force Base. Research continues at the base's facilities today, and Wright-Patterson Air Force Base is also home to the National Museum of the United States Air Force."]

On June 27, 2006, with his permission, Ronald SeCoy and I talked by phone in a two hour recorded interview. The date that the Flight Surgeon talked to Ronald SeCoy began in Christmas time of 1975. The older retired Colonel and flight surgeon had formed a father and son relationship with Ronnie Secoy, who was working as a manager in the older man's company. The extraterrestrial autopsy described was in the late 1940s at Wright-Patterson AFB, Dayton, Ohio.

Interview:

Ronald SeCoy, Business Owner, Central Ohio - "One day I probed him on that subject about, 'What were the things in the military that had caused so much stress for you?'

To my utter surprise, he broke down and started crying. And I thought, 'My goodness, this man must have really been through some military campaigns that had really affected him.'

He told me, 'I can't tell you. You wouldn't understand.'

That time we were together for lunch, it broke up really quickly and I thought to myself, 'Oh, gee, I hope I'm not in trouble here with my boss with the relationship here because I like my job and that was a really surprising happening that he just broke down and started crying.'

Then one day he called me on the phone and said, 'I would like to spend some more time with you, but instead of an hour or so, on your day off could you have lunch with me?'

I said, 'Sure.' And he said, 'And I'll pay you for it.'

I said, 'You don't have to do that.' He said, 'That's all right. I'll give you a half day pay.'

I realized later after we got together for the luncheon. It did not last for an hour or so. We were together two or three hours. One of the things he entered into was religious belief. And he asked me if I believed in God? I said, 'Very much so.' He probed me on that. He was out of a Catholic background and I was out of a Methodist background. He really was probing why I believed in God.

I asked him, 'Do you believe in God?'

And this look came over his face, which haunted me because I really liked this man and the subject seemed to shatter him talking about it. That's all we talked about was God and do you believe in the Bible and that sort of thing.

I thought, 'This is such an odd series of conversations to be having with him. I wonder what is causing this?'

WHAT WAS THE LOOK THAT CAME OVER HIS FACE WHEN YOU ASKED HIM IF HE BELIEVED IN GOD?

His whole countenance changed. This very handsome, together – like I said before, very formal, aristocratic man – everything melted in his face as if he were terrified. And his hands would shake.

I'm going, 'What experience caused this that he would shake and the whole concept in talking about a God and if God was real? Why was he doing this with me?'

It almost frightened me because it's my boss I'm talking with. You're always warned, 'Don't get too personal with the person you are employed with because that can end up to haunt you and you'll lose your job. And I liked my job.

So, I said, 'Did something happen in the military to break your religious beliefs, or your belief in God?'

And he broke down. He began to cry in this public restaurant over in the corner the worst cry I had ever seen in my life.

I decided right then and there that with the faith I had, whether it cost me my job or not, I had to figure out what was doing this to this man? Why was he so broken down about this subject? What did he experience in the military? I assumed it was seeing people die. So I started probing him on that subject and he turned and looked at me and said, 'I cannot tell you. I have restrictions. It's something I absolutely cannot talk about.'

I said, 'Are you talking about that you just want to put this out of your mind? Or?'

He said, 'No, it has to do with national security.'

That caught me by surprise. I said, 'You mean like secrets or something?'

And he said, 'Absolutely like secrets. Things I'm sworn under oath never to divulge.'

And the meeting broke up on that note - that he was under oath and he could never talk about what was disturbing him. I didn't get that because it was years later. It wasn't like he'd been out of the military for a year or two. He had been out of the military for many years.

What could it be from his past that was such a big Top Secret deal that he couldn't talk about it now? I didn't understand that, particularly for someone who was not like a command officer. He was a flight surgeon. What would a doctor in the military have that was so secretive that he could not talk about it years later?

Flight Surgeon Described Extraterrestrial Autopsy At Wright-Patterson AFB in Late 1940s

The next time we got together, when he drove up to where I was, I saw a total complete countenance change on him. When he came in, I saw the Colonel. He came walking in like a military man. He had a look on his face so I could almost see him in his uniform. When he sat down, he said: 'We need to talk.'

I said, 'Yes, sir.' It went through my head: 'He's back in the military.' Maybe he's finally going to relate this subject to me that happened to him. The next few minutes he talked about TOP SECRET-type things. 'When you give an oath in the military, he said, 'you can't divulge things. It's just beyond the ability to do so.' This many years later, I asked, 'Were these combat things?' He said, 'No, I told you before it was not combat.'

I said, 'But this kind of gut wrenching problem that affects someone sure looks like death to me.' And this look came over his face and he said, 'Yes, it had to do with death.'

I asked, 'Death to men under your command?'

'No, but death.'

We talked about that for some time and what could it be? Then he broke down. He said, 'If I told you something, would you absolutely give me your word that you would never tell a living soul on Earth?'

I said, 'Yes, sir.'

He said, 'You couldn't tell your wife.'

'OK, I won't tell my wife.'

'You'll absolutely have to swear to me. You're a religious man. Will you swear on God's name?'

'I can't do that. It's against my religious beliefs.'

Then a look came over his face and he said, 'I understand that. OK, I believe you. When I was in the military, I had a basic routine I did all the time. I was an administrative man. I was not a line officer in a command structure that had anything to do with combat or anything like that. I was a doctor. I was in charge of a wing in SAC. All the military records in making sure the pilots were tested out about fatigue and all their problems about medical conditions.'

I said, 'When you say you were a flight surgeon, were you a surgeon?'

He said, 'No, I'm a doctor, but I was more an administrative officer of doctors under me and all the records.'

I asked, 'Does this thing have to do with your job as a flight surgeon?'

He said, 'Very much so.'

He said that one night, he got a call from the base, from Wright-Patterson AFB. That was not a usual event for him to be called in the middle of the night because of the kind of job that he had. He was told he had to get to the base real soon. He told the person on the phone that he would be there in about two hours.

The person on the phone at the other end was interrupted. He said a General came on the line, a General he didn't know who it was. He (flight surgeon) was given a direct order to be at the base in 45 minutes. So, he had to scramble and he realized he could not go casual. He put on his uniform and jumped in his car. When he got there, another anomalous thing happened.

Normally he would just go through (the gate) and just drive on to the base through the checkpoint because of whom he was. He had a sticker on his car and people at the guard post would know who he was. But there was a vehicle waiting for him and he was told to follow it and was escorted onto the base. He wondered what was happening: 'Are we in an alert? Or has there been a plane crash?' He wondered what was going on because this had never happened to him before.

WHAT YEAR WAS THIS?

Later, that subject came up. He did not say the exact year, but he said in the very late 1940s. And I realized he was trying to learn how to return to the faith he lost back then. That night he and the escort went clear across the base to another area of a series of buildings that he had never even been in. When he got there, he was ushered inside by military police with an escort. He went, 'What is this?' He began to have fear because this was back in the era of the Cold War – perhaps something wrong had happened in the world and perhaps we were on some kind of alert.

When he went inside, he was met by a General he had never met before. 'He did not give me any names.' He was taken into a side room, and when he went inside the room, the General closed the door and said, 'Sit down.'

The flight surgeon sat down at a table and the General sat down across from him. He (flight surgeon) was expecting an explanation about what this was all about. But instead of an explanation, the General slid a piece of paper across the table at him and said, 'Read that.'

He looked at it and saw a kind of form he had never seen before. It had to do with security and it was about a level of security clearance he had never heard about before. He turned it over and asked, 'What do you want me to do with this?'

The General said, 'I want you to sign it.' He signed the thing and he was really confused because he was not into TOP SECRET aircraft or any of that kind of thing. That was not his job in the military. He was a doctor.

He asked, 'Why do I have to sign this?'

The General said, 'Because you're just about to enter into another level of military experience that you are not familiar with and at a certain level of keeping secrets that requires this level. I have to warn you about something.'

USAF Colonel Flight Surgeon Threatened by General

What followed were threats. In all his time in the military, he (flight surgeon) had always been treated with the most respect and the fact that he was a Colonel, this type of conduct by the General, he was really put off. Suddenly here is a Colonel having to sign a special high level TOP SECRET form and then he's being told that, 'What you see here, what you hear, you can't ever take off this base. You can't ever talk about it to anybody unless you are addressed by your superiors. And what you are about to go through, you have to only talk about with your superiors and with no other members of the military, nobody below you, nobody in the medical end of all the people you deal with on a daily basis.'

He could not discuss it with his colleagues. He could only discuss it when it was brought up by his superiors. He could never take it off base and there was nobody in the world he could talk to. He could not talk to his priest. He could not talk to his wife. He could not talk to anybody about it. And if it was ever found out that he had discussed what was about to happen with anybody, he could end up destroying his military career and could even end up in court martial.

Before he could say anything or ask any questions, he said they immediately were walking up a hall. His head was swimming by all this. 'What can this possibly be that I'm having to enter into a whole new world here of relationship with the military?'

Three Generals In Charge

Before he could get an answer, somebody walked up to him and handed him a clipboard and on it was a notepad. It even had a pen attached to it. They handed him a mask.

He asked, 'What's this for?'

They said, 'Just put it on.' When he walked around the corner, there were two more Generals – one that he knew from the Base; and another General he did not know. And now he was really terrified because he's in the presence of three command structure Generals. That had never happened in his life that he was in that kind of position.

Before he could ask any questions, he was walking up the hall towards a door in a building he had never been in and there was a window in the wall that you could look into the next room. Inside – this was the middle of the night – there were lights set up and he saw a photographer. He wondered what he was going to look at. Again, he thought through his mind, 'A crash!' because they were taking pictures inside. It went through his mind, 'They've got bodies here,' because of what he could see. But he could not tell what it was about because it was just a glimpse.

A door opened and he was told to walk in. When he got inside, he just froze. He said his whole world turned upside down by what he saw when he went through the door.

Flight Surgeon Ordered to Observe Autopsy and Write Observations

He was not given any preparation for it. No one said anything to him. No one warned him about what he was about to see. He was just told, 'Go in and stay along the wall.' There were other doctors in the room. He was also told, 'From your scientific expertise being a medical doctor and your science background, observe. Anything that comes to your mind, take notes. Just anything. No matter what it is that hits your brain, write it down.'

He asked, 'What do you mean by that?' One General told him, 'It will be self-explanatory.'

When he walked in, he saw there was an autopsy going on. There were two medical doctors dressed up in garb and that they had a body on a table and there were lights on this and camera equipment, both motion picture and a man taking still photography. There were two other men along the wall. He later found out that all five of them were doctors in that one room, all military doctors.

There were two tables side-by-side and on the two tables were two dead alien beings. He said that his whole world shattered that day and he began to cry (in the restaurant) as he related the rest of the story. And his hands were shaking. Every once in awhile he would stop in telling the story and revert back to something that he would say over and over again: 'I don't know why this happened to me!'

Two Dead Non-Human Entities: One Undamaged; Other Badly Injured

He said that one of these alien beings looked perfectly normal, that he didn't see anything wrong with it. But it was obviously dead. But the alien being on the table next to it was just the opposite. It was horribly burned, had a horrific wound in one of its legs. But the look on its face, he could never forget it – it was the look of anguished horror at the moment of its death. It was frozen on this being's face.

The autopsy was already going on. He could not say anything to anybody. He was just frozen in silence. He said the stench was unbelievable and he was overcome by the situation and wanted to vomit. But he knew he couldn't. He wanted to run out of the room, but he knew he couldn't. For the first several minutes that he was in the room, he was just transfixed, staring at what was going on and was not writing anything. Then he remembered the directive he was given: 'Write anything that comes to your head. Write it down.'

So he said with almost not looking at the paper, just staring at what was going on, anything that came to his head he wrote it down on the paper. He said that these were obviously living creatures. But, unlike any living creature he had ever seen before. But he said it was like they were not real, like they were dolls or something.

I said, 'I don't understand what that means.'

He said, 'They just did not have the appearance of being weathered.'

I said, 'I just don't understand what you mean.'

He said, 'Look at your skin. Think about living creatures. They are not pristine. They don't look like a doll sitting on a shelf.' These creatures did not have any signs of age. They did not have any look about them.'

I said, 'Are you talking wrinkles?'

He said, 'Exactly. They did not look like they were wrinkled. They looked like big, 4-foot-tall dolls.'

They didn't have big shoulders. They had real slender arms. They were not powerful at all. Slim fingers. Just slim-framed. They were not big. It went through his head. 'If these are aliens from outer space, they are not like some kind of bizarre creatures you would be afraid of if you saw them because they could overwhelm you physically, like monsters in a movie. That's not what these were. These were just little creatures.'

Eyes Looked Like Mechanical Optical Devices

And the first thing about them that he noticed right away was when they were looking at one of the eyes. He said, 'I got the distinct impression that this eye they were examining, it was not anything like a human eye and it did not even look like a living creature's eye. It was more like an optical instrument.'

I said, 'What do you mean by that?'

He said, 'It had layers and it looked like some sort of optical device more than it did a real eye.'

He told me that it was not like it was living tissue, like you would see in a human eye or like in any animal organism. Eyes are eyes. He said it was more like an optical device, like from a camera or something like that. It did not look living. It looked mechanical.

[Editor's Note: In the book The Day After Roswell © 1997 by U. S. Army Lt. Col. Philip J. Corso, he wrote on pages 45-46:

"I was most interested in the file descriptions accompanying a two piece set of dark elliptical eyepieces as thin as skin. The Walter Reed pathologists said they adhered to the lenses of the extraterrestrial creatures' eyes and seemed to reflect existing light, even in what looked like complete darkness, so as to illuminate and intensify images in the darkness to allow their wearer to pick out shapes. The reports had said that the pathologists at Walter Reed hospital who autopsied one of these creatures tried to peer through them in the darkness to watch the one or two army sentries and medical orderlies walking down a corridor adjacent to the pathology lab. These figures were illuminated in a greenish-orange, depending upon how they moved, but the pathologists could see only their outer shape. And when they got close to each other, their shapes blended into a single form. But they could also see the outlines of furniture and the wall and objects on desktops."]

No Sex Organs

He said the second thing he noticed and wrote down was: these creatures did not have sex organs. That lead him medically to think there was no way for them to relieve themselves. There were no exterior orifices. If these things are living creatures, all living creatures eat. All living creatures expel waste. 'I don't see how they'd do that,' he said. That was the second thing he wrote down on his paper. 'How do these people eat? And how do they expel waste?'

So, then he started trying to zone in on his own thing and not concentrating so hard on what the men were doing in the autopsy. He was just looking at things. The next thing he started looking at was the mouth. He said, 'The mouth does not look like a carnivore, like it would eat like an ape. It was obviously an upright, bipedal entity of some kind that walked upright and was kind of like a hominid. But it was nothing like a human being. It looked almost like an insect, he said, in the shape of its head.'

The insect part of it was might be why the eyes were so funny, if it was totally different than a human eye. It did not look like it ate solid food, that it might live on fluids or something. But knowing how a human expels liquid from its body, how did this creature do that? He could not see any signs of that.

Then he said they (doctors) opened up the thoracic section of the body and it had organs and internal components, but nothing like human being and not nearly as complex. That really got his attention right away.

You open up a human being and it's just packed with all sorts of things, including the G.I. tract and the lungs and all that. The internal organs were like a living being's, but not what he would have thought of in terms of remembering his medical training about the human body. He was not a surgeon that did surgery. He was just a basic doctor. But he understood the human body completely and these creatures were not as complex as we were. There were things missing inside of them and it baffled him. They were obviously a living organism. But how did that living organism function?

Long Fingers with Pads On Fingertips

The next thing he said he noticed was its hands. Their hands were, for the size of the body, large, but very delicate with long fingers. There was something odd about them. He couldn't actually examine them. He didn't walk over to the table. He was just told to watch and write down notes and he did that. So, he did not actually handle the bodies. But there were like pads on their fingertips.

I said, 'Do you think these things were intelligent?'

He looked at me kind of stunned.

I said, 'Well, how could they not be? This is not their world and they are here.'

I had not thought about that. I was just overwhelmed by the story. These are extraterrestrials. These are people from another world. Now, I'm starting to get overwhelmed by the whole thing. I did not doubt him for a second. Normally, if someone would tell you about a story like this, you would think they were crazy. But I knew he was not crazy. He experienced this. He was not making up a story and this is what was disturbing him so badly – this event that happened in his past.

E. T. Skin Was Fabric

He said that the next thing he noticed about them was he did not see anything else in the room but them. I asked him what he meant.

He said, 'Clothing.'

So I said, 'They were naked dead bodies and you did not see anything that might belong to them in the room?'

He said, 'Exactly. There was nothing in the room.' And there was this horrible stench, unlike any smell he had ever smelled before. When he started watching their bodies and just looking at them from head to toe, he said they had a very pale complexion. But what was their body, the skin, their covering, it almost had a fabric-like look to it.

I asked, 'What do you mean by that?'

He said, 'I mean just that. It was obviously their flesh, their body, but it sure did not look like soft human tissue that's on a human body.' It was nothing like anything I'd seen before. It was just like it was fabric. It was almost like it had a fabric suit on (leotard) , but the suit was its flesh at the same time.'

He said it also dawned on him: 'They've got the wrong people here.'

I said, 'What do you mean by that?'

He said, 'Since these things aren't really human and just sort of look like humans, why don't we have zoologists here? Or anthropologists here? People who understand more life forms than just human beings. There was just us. Why weren't there pathologists here?'

I said, 'What happened next?'

He said, 'They took me up the hall. They never took me back.'

I said, 'Are you saying you didn't do a good job?'

He said, 'From their perspective, I don't think I did do a good job. I was the wrong man.'

That's when he broke down again and he said, 'I was the wrong man. And why did they do this to me? I'm not a specialist. I'm not a pathologist. I wasn't a real surgeon who did surgery on people. I was just a basic doctor. Why me? They should not have involved this in my life. I should not have been caught up in this. And then they are threatening me and telling me I would be court-martialed if I ever told anybody. I could be imprisoned for the rest of my life.'

That's when I realized that he had been carrying this thing inside of him all these years and re-playing this. It went through my head; there have to be moments when this comes back to him – maybe on a daily basis. He has been locked in this nightmare.

Ronald SeCoy's Reason to Speak Out Now

YOU ARE TALKING TO ME ON JUNE 27, 2006, ABOUT ALL OF THIS - WHY?

Well, you know, this shook me up, too. I'm a man of my word and I carried this inside myself for years.

Needless to say, every time I would see a movie or something on TV or Star Trek or anything, I would relive the moments of discussing these events with this man all through these decades.

But I never thought about telling anybody. One, I gave my word. But two, who would you tell it to? I did not want to be thought of as being crazy because back in those times that many years ago (1975), if anybody said they believed in aliens, you would be laughed at. There were not the kinds of revelations, which have come out the last thirty years.

But over the course of time I began to see things on television and hear events. And quite frankly, you! The number of times I have heard you on radio giving very detailed interviews with people and uncovering facts. It would be like pieces of a puzzle.

One day I had this thought in my head that this whole issue is like this gigantic puzzle the size of a basketball court or something with all these pieces that are so complex! You have to turn over all the pieces to see the whole picture of what this whole thing is. This is a gigantic thing to comprehend and I know one little piece of the puzzle, that's all. It's one little piece that someone should come forward because over the course of time as I would hear stuff about this on talk radio that I like to listen to – I used to get angry. Why don't these people come forward? These people who went through this and knew things about this. Then one day, it just dawned on me: You know something about this and you haven't come forward. So that disturbed me for some time and I thought about that. But how do I do this? And who would listen to me? I just heard about it (from the retired flight surgeon) and did not see it myself.

One day (in April) I said after I had been to your website Earthfiles and looked it over and saw how to contact you. I swallowed hard and then I did not do it. I thought about it for a day. Then I went back and said, 'OK, I'm going to do this.' And that's when I entered the message to contact you and then a couple of weeks went by and I thought, 'Well, I did it, but she's not going to contact me back.' The very day I thought you were not going to contact me back, there was an e-mail from you.'

Wright-Patterson AFB Eyewitnesses, Intimidation And Cover-Up

These bodies, they came from somewhere. That means that there were people who handled them. They were transported across the United States. There were people involved. They came to Wright-Patterson AFB and if they were there at Wright-Patterson, that means that people knew about it. In that building when the autopsy was going on with this gentleman (flight surgeon), I counted up in my head there had to be a dozen people right there.

And those people had other people around them: security; the doctors; the Generals; their support staff. How many people know about this?

If there are that many people involved, how can it be that so many people don't come forward? Then I realized when I think about that, I'm looking at this dynamic human being (flight surgeon), college educated, a doctor, a Colonel in the USAF. This shattered his life and he was afraid. He was afraid by the threats they made against him. If you can intimidate such a dynamic individual who is a Colonel in the military, who he is terrified they will ruin his life, that they might put him in a room somewhere for the rest of his life and he'll never get out if he would ever convey what he saw and heard to anyone else! What do they do to lesser people?

DID THEY THREATEN HIM WITH ANYTHING ELSE BESIDES COURT MARTIAL?

Yes. I asked him specifically if he had ever told this to anybody and he said he never told anybody. He had never discussed it with his wife. It became very evident why he was so emotionally disturbed by all this. He said, 'These people mean business.'

I asked, 'What do you mean by that?'

He said, 'This is not like the regular military. These aren't really the regular military. When they threaten you, they mean it.'

I said, 'You mean they could harm you?'

He said, 'I was threatened in such a way I have the feeling that if I really did tell my wife or other people, that they might have me under surveillance and might know this and I might end up in a room some place, or even dead.' But he was more concerned about imprisonment in some kind of facility where they put people like this away from being able to tell what they know.

DID HE TALK TO YOU SPECIFICALLY WITH KNOWLEDGE ABOUT OUR GOVERNMENT - OR WHATEVER THE SHADOW SECRET GROUP IS THAT RUNS THINGS? DO THEY HAVE FACILITIES WHERE THEY HAVE LOCKED AWAY PEOPLE WHO HAD FIRSTHAND KNOWLEDGE ABOUT THE EXTRATERRESTRIALS?

No. He didn't talk about that. But one thing he did mention. I asked him: 'Do you think this is the only event of this kind that happened? These things came from somewhere. They were injured and killed. That means they had an accident or there was combat between us and them. Or something.'

I asked him from his military background, did he think this was the only event of its kind? He shook his head and said, 'No, I don't believe that.' He said, 'I think this government knows a lot about these things and that we have a lot more things than this.'

I asked, 'Do you mean craft or debris?'

He goes, 'Well, we got these bodies. Don't you think we have debris? And that means we have facilities to handle bodies and we've got facilities to handle debris.'

I went, 'Oh, you're talking the word cover-up.'

He said, 'It's got to be huge!'

Policy of Denial in the Interest of National Security - and Power

I think they (government insiders) are going to want to give an excuse for why they did not come forward.

WHAT IS THE GOVERNMENT COVERING UP AND WILL LIE ABOUT?

It's got to be one word: power. You've got craft that can come here from somewhere else. That's enormous power. They've got to be able to do all sorts of things. If you can get in a craft and come from another world, what things are you doing in this world? And if you are somehow a powerful individual person on this planet, government or military or whatever, and you are inter-relating with them at some level, whether you have direct contact with them and can communicate with them, or you just have their downed craft and can examine it - we're talking about enormous power. What are you doing with that enormous power? How are you applying that knowledge that you've gained?

For instance, these craft - if you can come here from another world, that means you've got the energy thing licked. If you have the energy thing licked, we don't have to burn oil anymore to light buildings and drive vehicles. There has to be another way to do everything. We would not pollute our world. There are all kinds of answers here that are being withheld from the general public because they are controlling it and making the financial gain from it.

THAT KIND OF CORRUPT POWER DOES NOT WANT TO LET GO EASILY, SO WHAT WOULD YOU PREDICT MIGHT BE THE FUTURE EVOLUTION OF ALL THIS ON THIS PLANET?

As long as the insiders can withhold the real relationships - you don't know what goes on behind closed doors, think about the corporate world. The people behind all this and all their activities, the real deep stuff, they are only going to want us to see a façade. They are going to want you to only see the outside of the building, not the inside rooms.

So, when they release this data, this supposed unveiling of things, you know has eventually got to come, it will be controlled. They are going to tell us what they want us to know, think what they want us to think, and how much of it will be the truth and how much of it will be a multi-year, carefully crafted story?

THE SUBJECTS THAT ARE THE HARDEST FOR THEM ARE GLOBAL ANIMAL MUTILATIONS BEING DONE BY EXTRATERRESTRIAL BIOLOGICAL ENTITIES, THE ABDUCTIONS OF HUMAN BEINGS, AND A BEAM TECHNOLOGY THAT IS USED ALSO TO PICK UP THE ANIMALS, TAKE TISSUE AND FLUIDS AND RETURN THEM. THEN THERE IS THE LIKELIHOOD OF TECHNOLOGIES THAT COULD SOLVE THE ENERGY PROBLEM. HOW ARE GOVERNMENT INSIDERS GOING TO HANDLE THESE HARD PIECES OF PHYSICAL EVIDENCE THAT LINK DIRECTLY TO THE EXTRATERRESTRIALS?

They are not! These are the kinds of things when I said they are going to paint a picture - let's say you are the mafia and you can't help it. There are too many reporters coming at you and pieces of your structure are coming out and you are going to be in a situation where you are going to be exposed, but you've always lived secret and hidden. You are going to help expose yourself in certain areas and tell a lie about it, so the public and media don't get the real truth behind it. That's what they are going to do. They are going to tell us a story about why the aliens have been here, and what they do here, and who they have interchanged with, and a self-serving, constructed timeline history of events. That's basic human nature. Everybody who is caught tells a story and if you can tell part of the truth and withhold the most damning evidence, that's what you do.

The kinds of things you just described. I don't know a lot about those things. You know more than I. But anyone who has been involved and has the facts of it and they were supposed to be part of our government, would they ever want to turn and look at a camera and say, 'Oh, by the way, we have all known about this for years. We just did not want to tell you.' I don't think they want to own up to that.

BUT IT'S OBVIOUS THAT IS THE FACT. AND WHAT DO THEY SAY DIRECTLY TO A QUESTION: WHAT ARE THE EXTRATERRESTRIALS DOING WITH ALL THESE MUTILATED ANIMALS AROUND THE WORLD THAT LT. COL. PHILIP J. CORSO TOLD ME HE HAD SEEN CLASSIFIED DOCUMENTS IN WASHINGTON, D. C., ABOUT EXTRATERRESTRIAL BIOLOGICAL ENTITIES MUTILATING ANIMALS AROUND THE WORLD WITH DATES AS EARLY AS 1951? OUR GOVERNMENT HAS KNOWN ABOUT EXTRATERRESTRIALS KILLING AND MUTILATING ANIMALS AROUND THIS PLANET WITHOUT BLOOD AND WITH A SOPHISTICATED TECHNOLOGY FOR AT LEAST 50 OR 60 YEARS.

Alien Agendas and Needs

I've used the word 'agenda' and there's another word that goes hand in hand with agenda. There is a reason why you have an agenda and the word that goes with agenda is the word 'need.' If they have an agenda and are doing activities like that, they need to be doing it. This is not just us being laboratory rats. Everything they needed to know about us - if they are this smart and they have been coming here this long - they know as much about us as our own doctors and own university scientists know about us. So, why are they still doing this?

They have a need of some kind. They need to be doing this, these entities. The question is: what's that need? Why do they need to be on our planet? Why do they need to interact with us at a hidden level and be working with our animals and abducting human beings? What's the need? They've got one."

Extraterrestrial Biological Entity Description in July 22, 1947, Interplanetary Phenomenon Unit Summary

11. As to the bodies recovered at LZ-2, it appeared that none of the five crew members survived entry into our atmosphere due to unknown causes. DR. DETLEV BRONK has been asked to assist in the autopsy of one well preserved cadaver to be done by MAJOR CHARLES E. REA. From what descriptions the team was able to learn and from photographs taken by intelligence photographers, the occupants appear in most respects human with some anatomical differences in the head, eyes, hands and feet. They have a slight build about five feet tall, with grayish-pink skin color. They have no hair on their bodies and clothed with a tight fitting flight suit that appears to be fire proof (some of the bodies looked as if they had been burned on head and hands). Their overall stature reminds one of young children. It is believed that there were male and female genders present, but was hard to distinguish.

10. Description of Extraterrestrial Biological Entities (EBEs)

Examination of remains recovered from wreckage of UFOBs indicates that Extraterrestrial Biological Entities may be classified into two distinct categories as follows:

a. EBE Type I. These entities are humanoid and might be mistaken for human beings of the Oriental race if seen from a distance. They are bipedal, 5-5 feet 4 inches in height and weigh 80-100 pounds. Proportionally they are similar to humans, although the cranium is somewhat larger and more rounded. The skin is a pale, chalky-yellow in color, thick, and slightly pebbled in appearance. The eyes are small, wide-set, almond-shaped, with brownish-black irises with very large pupils. The whites of the eyes are not like that of humans, but have a pale gray cast. The ears are small and set low on the skull. The nose is thin and long, and the mouth is wider than in humans, and nearly lipless. There is no apparent facial hair and very little body hair, that being very fine and confined to the underarm and the groin area. The body is thin and without apparent body fat, but the muscles are well-developed. The hands are small, with four long digits but no opposable thumb. The outside digit is jointed in a manner as to be nearly opposable, and there is no webbing between the finger as in humans. The legs are slightly but noticeably bowed, and the feet are somewhat splayed and proportionally large.

b. EBE Type II. These entities are humanoid but differ from Type I in many respects. They are bi-pedal, 3 feet 5 inches - 4 feet 2 inches in height and weight 25-50 pounds. Proportionally, the head is much larger than humans or Type I EBEs, the cranium being much larger and elongated. The eyes are very large, slanted, and nearly wrap around the side of the skull. They are black with no whites showing. There is no noticeable brow ridge, and the skull has a slight peak that runs over the crown. The nose consists of two small slits which sit high above the slit-like mouth. There are no external ears. The skin is a pale bluish-gray color, being somewhat darker on the back of the creature, and is very smooth and fine-celled. There is no hair on either the face or the body, and these creatures do not appear to be mammalian. The arms are long in proportion to the legs, and the hands have three long, tapering fingers and a thumb which is nearly as long as the fingers. The second finger is thicker than the others, but not as long as the index finger. The feet are small and narrow, and four toes are joined together with a membrane.

It is not definitely known where either type of creature originated, but it seems certain that they did not evolve on earth. It is further evident, although not certain, that they may have originated on two different planets.
