

Half Cat and Other Animal Mutilations Around the World and East of Palm Springs, California right underneath her breast (through cat's spine).”*

September 29, 2008 Albuquerque, New Mexico - There is one environmental assault I wish I never had to report about, but new cases are persistent. These are the bloodlessly mutilated cats, rabbits, dogs, horses, cows – and even kangaroos and koalas - around the world. The following are only some of the unusual animal deaths since June 2008. There have also been several animal mutilation reports from Argentina and other South American regions and in the future, I will devote another Earthfiles to those South American cases.

June 2008

Rabbits in Germany

First, German rabbits. On Monday, June 9, 2008, the owner of two rabbits in Witten, Dortmund of Germany's Ruhr Valley, found one of his pets gone and the other was headless. The wave of German rabbit mutilations began in October 2007, increasing in May of 2008. Now, at least forty rabbits have been beheaded or cut up in odd ways without any signs of blood.

The police task force spokesman told the UK Independent newspaper: “We have a number of officers working on the case and we are carrying out exhaustive investigations. But we have no idea who is doing this. We are still in the dark.”

[Editor's Note: In my book, Glimpses of Other Realities, Vol. I: Facts & Eyewitnesses © 1994, Earthfiles Shop, the following information is included about two rabbit mutilations discovered in Long Island, New York, on April 21, 1990.

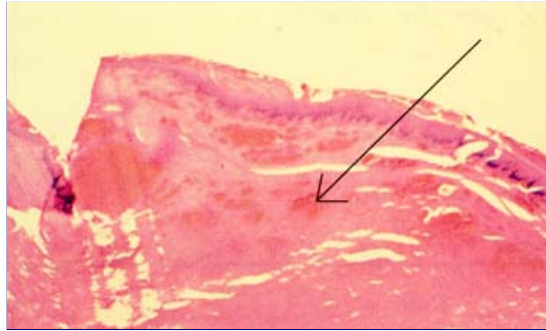

Page 174: “On April 21, 1990, at Sound Beach, Long Island, two rabbits were found a few hundred feet from each other, dead and mutilated. No blood, no tracks. One of the rabbits was headless and one had the now classic mutilation feature in which eye tissue is removed around an empty eye socket. Long Island investigators sent Dr. John Altshuler, M. D., pathologist and hematologist in Denver, Colorado, both rabbits as they had been found. In all the excisions lines on the two rabbits, Dr. Altshuler confirmed evidence of high heat, including cooked hemoglobin shown below.

Cattle in Canada

Also in June 2008, from Germany across the Northern Hemisphere to Esterhazy, Saskatchewan, Canada, a cow was found dead and bloodlessly mutilated, missing its ear, eye, tongue, jaw flesh, genitals and its rectum was cored out. Not long after that one and some miles away in Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, another cow was found dead and mutilated.

July 2008

Half-Cats in Canada, Texas, and California; and Half-Dog in Florida

By July 1, 2008, a cat in Rutland, British Columbia, Canada, was found bloodlessly cut in half. It was one of a dozen mutilated cats found in Rutland since 2004.

Three days later on July 4th, in northeastern Dallas, Texas, a cat was found “slit from neck to between its back legs – a very precise cut.” All internal organs had been removed – without blood.

Back in Canada in the first half of July, the fourth cat mutilation since 2006 was found in Kingston, Ontario, while the sixth mutilated cat was found in Palm Springs, California, prompting the Riverside County Sheriff’s Office to declare the bloodlessly mutilated cats as “unusual and weird.”

On July 7, a pet chihuahua dog was found cut in half bloodlessly, and the next day on July 8, in St. Petersburg, Florida, a 10-year-old cat was found with a straight, razor-sharp cut from its throat down – without blood.

The next day on July 8, in Corpus Christi, Texas, the third cat in a month was found cut precisely in half without blood. By August 2008, the number of mutilated half cats had increased to thirteen.

Half Cat Background

When I was in England the summer of 1999 to study the crop formations in Wiltshire, I learned that for a year the London Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals had received dozens of reports from residents who had found on their sidewalks or front yards their cats and rabbits disemboweled, cut in half and even decapitated - usually without blood on the dead cat's hair or at the site of discovery.

Since at least the 1970s, a similar pattern of cat mutilations has been reported in Toronto, Ontario, Edmonton, Alberta, and Vancouver, B.C., Canada. Other regions with repeating cycles of cats cut in half or thirds are Seattle, Bellingham and Bothel, Washington; Plano, Austin, Granbury, Corpus Christi, Fort Worth and San Antonio, Texas; Falls Church, Virginia; Lee, New York; Los Alamos, New Mexico; Tucson and Ahwatakee Foothills, Arizona; Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; Destin, Mary Esther, St. Petersburg and Navarre, Florida; Tustin and San Diego, California, and in May 2001, in San Jose, California, two dozen cats, a raccoon and a rat were found disemboweled, cut in half and oddly skinned.

In 1978 in St. Catharines near Toronto, Canada, authorities were frustrated by more than 100 missing cats and dogs found in their owners' yards skinned, decapitated, disemboweled, cut in half or paws removed, without blood at the site.

Eleven years later on August 13, 1989, The New York Times reported about 67 cats found mutilated in Tustin, California - a suburb of Los Angeles near Santa Ana. The NYT wrote:

“Some of them were cut in half with what some say is almost surgical precision, others disemboweled or skinned. Janet Hampson, a Tustin resident, summed up the eeriness of it all: 'There is never any blood at the scene, the animals are often dismembered with surgical precision and paws and other body parts are often left on the ground in strikingly similar arrangements. No one ever seems to hear anything, nor do dogs bark during the killing.' She and others in her neighborhood speculated that the cats were captured, taken elsewhere, their blood drained and organs or heads or torso removed, and then the mutilated cat is replaced on its owner's lawn – for reasons unknown."

Cycles of cat mutilations have re-occurred in Tustin and in Plano, Texas an affluent suburb north of Dallas. In 1991, 1993 and again the past couple of years, police received dozens of reports about cats found cut in half, usually with the front half near the owners' yards or sidewalks. Plano Police Detective Mike Box also had missing reports on more than 80 domestic house cats that wore collars and I. D. tags, but were never found. Detective Box investigated satanic cult activities, but could not find any evidence that connected them to the mutilated and missing cats and other animals such as dogs.

In 1992-1993, Vancouver, British Columbia had a rash of cats found cut in half - usually the front half was found on the owner's lawn. The Supervisor of Animal Control for the Vancouver City Pound told reporters, "The cats are clearly being butchered by someone. It's a real surgical job. And all I hope is that these cats were already dead when they were cut in half." At the time during those rash of cat mutilations in Vancouver, I was working with pathologist and hematologist John Altshuler, M. D., in Denver, Colorado. We were able to obtain one of the half cats - the front half - for analysis of the abdominal excision. Dr. Altshuler confirmed that the entire excision had been cut with something hot enough to cook the collagen and hemoglobin.

By September 15, 1999, the San Jose Mercury newspaper headlined "Cat killer menaces southern San Jose." The article began, "A killer is stalking the cats of southern San Jose, mutilating 21 felines since May 31 - primarily pets taken from owners' yards at night and returned dead, often dismembered and skinned."

More than 2,000 fliers were distributed by police in south San Jose neighborhoods warning owners to keep their cats indoors. And the Humane Society of Santa Clara Valley posted a cash reward that grew to at least $20,000. But no one was ever arrested and arraigned.

Six years later, on August 16, 2005, a cat was discovered cut cleanly in half on the front yard of a south an Jose, California, resident.

Unusual Cattle Deaths in Arizona and Mutilated Koala in Australia

On August 21, the Arizona Department of Agriculture investigated the unusual deaths of 40 head of cattle that all died grazing in the same pasture in Chino Valley. More than 150 other cattle in the pasture were unharmed. To date, the cause of the cattle deaths has not been confirmed.

On August 22, at Clear Mountain, northwest of Brisbane, Australia, a 4-year-old male Koala was found with its abdomen cut open bloodlessly. Earlier in August, a baby Koala was also found dead and mutilated.

Half-Cat in Bermuda Dunes, California

Bermuda Dunes, California (red A on map) is about a half hour southeast of Palm Springs. Map © 2008 by MapQuest.

But one of the saddest interviews I have ever done was this month of September with a woman living in a gated condominium community about a half-hour east of Palm Springs, California. The town is called Bermuda Dunes. Helen Cary is a retired dental lab technician and has lived in her condo for seven years with a male friend and her cat named Patches. Patches was generally a house cat, but sometimes after dinner, she wanted outside. Usually she would come back to sleep for the night. Once in awhile she would stay out all night and come running in the morning for her food and water. That's what had happened on the night of September 9, but by the afternoon of Wednesday, September 10, Patches had not returned and Helen was worried. Then one of her neighborhood friends found the front half of Patches laying in a central courtyard of grass. There was no blood on the fur, no hair on the grass, no other body parts - only the clean, empty upper half of Patches.

A week later, I talked with Helen Cary who was still very upset and periodically cried, but told me she wanted to speak up in hopes that my Earthfiles and radio broadcasts might help others come forward with more information to help solve who the cat mutilators are. She provided the September 10, 2008, Riverside County Sheriff's Department Indio Station Incident Report copied below with her permission (addresses and phone numbers deleted).

RIVERSIDE COUNTY SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT INDIO STATION NARRATIVE OF INITIAL REPORT
Page 4	Dop. Michael Scott Case # C08254027
1	from the animal shelter in August of 2004. Cary said the cat was wearing two collars; a
2	pink flea collar and a black and silver collar with gold trim and paw prints around it. Cary
3	said the black and silver collar also had the name "Patches" embroidered on it along with
4	her phone number. Cary said that when they found her cat on the lawn the cat was
5	wearing the pink flea collar, but the unique black and silver collar was missing.
7	I Next spoke with Robert Quiel who lives at the residence with Cary. Quiel told me that
8	on 090908, about 2100 hours, he let the cat inside the house. At 2130 hours, Quiel said
9	he let the cat back outside. Quiel said the cat never goes too far and she will wait by the
10	screen door until she is let back inside the house.
11
12	Officer Huffman, who is an Animal Control Officer for the County of Riverside responded
13	to our location. He said that the cat appeared to have been partially eaten by a coyote or
14	bobcat because the rib cage had serrated and had uneven broken bones, which are
15	consistent with an animal attack. Huffman said that a coyote or bobcat would tear open
16	the rear hindquarter portion of the cat to get to the nutrient rich internal organs. The
17	Coyote or Bobcat would always leave the front portion of the cat intact. Huffman said the
18	animals usually kill their prey and drag it to a different location to feed.
19
20	Officer Huffman took possession of the cat to send off to Dr. Drouys in Riverside for
21	evaluation on the cause of death.
22
23	I gave Cary a business card with the file number and asked her to contact Investigator
24	Gaunt regarding the cause of death or any questions she might have. This report will be
25	forwarded to Investigator Gaunt for further follow up.
26
27	CASE STATUS:
28	OPN/CC2

Helen Cary, retired dental lab technician, Bermuda Dunes, California: "And I don't mind you recording me, but right now I'm still having a difficult time. It's only been a week ago today. (Interview on September 17, 2008, after mutilated Patches discovered on September 10, 2008.)

WAS IT IN THE MORNING OR AFTERNOON THAT PATCHES WAS FOUND?

It was in the afternoon.

HAD PATCHES BEEN GONE ALL NIGHT?

Yes, she was out all night. My friend that I live with, he had put her out at 9:30 PM, which is kind of late. She normally goes out right after dinner and then wants to come back in.

Then the next morning on September 10, she didn't come. She was always waiting outside to get in and eat and drink her water and rest. But, you know, after a couple of hours, I kind of feared looking for her. We looked everywhere where we thought she would be. All I had to do was whistle and she would always come running.

BUT ON WEDNESDAY, SHE DID NOT COME.

No. And my friend, Darlene, two condos away had taken her chihuahua out to do its business and walked around the corner and thought she saw a cat asleep. And then she walked up and saw her condition and went and asked her mom and described the cat to her. And so they knew it was mine. Everyone knew Patches.

After Darlene found Patches, she called security here who contacted the Riverside County Sheriff's office. I went down to look at her (cries), but there was only half of her.

SO IT WAS ONLY THE FRONT HALF OF THE CAT WITHOUT BLOOD AND NO OTHER PART OF THE CAT AROUND ON THE GRASS?

Right. The officer said it looked like a clean, bloodless cut across my cat's chest, right underneath her breast.

THROUGH THE SPINE?

Yes.

WAS IT RETURNED TO YOUR YARD OR A NEIGHBOR'S YARD?

It was just two condos down from me. We all share the same yard. Patches was in the same big central grass courtyard that goes around the condos. There's thirteen units.

WHEN THE RIVERSIDE SHERIFF'S DEPUTY CAME, DID HE TALK ABOUT OTHER CASES THEY HAVE INVESTIGATED THIS YEAR?

Yes.

WHAT DID HE SAY?

He said it was not the first. They had found similar cases where they think the person is taking the cat and killing it first and then mutilating it and then just throwing away parts of it.

Darlene and I both walked around all the back and front, just trying to find some other part of Patches. We were both looking, but we didn't see anything. I mean, there wasn't even any hair around. They say if there were a struggle, there would be cat hair. If it had been a coyote eating it, it would have pulled off the hair and left hair balls or something like that. But there was none.

Then two days later in the morning (September 12, 2008), I kept looking out the patio door and I saw something lying by the pool gate. Sure enough, it was Patches' collar. It does have a charm on it. It was not heavy for her, but the wind would not be able to pick it up and blow it, I don't believe.

IT'S VERY STRANGE THAT TWO DAYS AFTER PATCHES WAS FOUND THAT HER COLLAR THAT WAS MISSING WOULD END UP NEAR A GATE TWO DOORS DOWN FROM YOU. BUT THE DEPUTY MADE IT VERY CLEAR UPON FINDING THE CAT'S CHEST BONE CUT IN HALF THAT THIS IS NOT SOMETHING A COYOTE COULD DO?

When they said it was such a clean cut and they were so certain. Then, when I did talk to the investigator that I was supposed to call about Patches, I talked to him the next day (Sept. 11, 2008) and the investigator kept in touch with me all day. Then I guess they changed what they said because they took photos all around where she was before I picked her up. The investigators even noticed that there was not any hair around.

NO BLOOD ON PATCHES'S OWN FUR?

No. The investigators just said it was really clean and her insides, her organs were gone. When the vet did the autopsy on her, she called the investigator and he called me and said that Patches did have a broken leg. So, if she was trying to get away, she could not because she had a broken leg. And they suggested that she might have gotten hit by a golf cart or car.

IS IT POSSIBLE THAT SHE COULD HAVE BEEN DROPPED FROM ABOVE TO THE GROUND?

Oh, I don't know.

HOW HAVE THE POLICE LEFT THIS INVESTIGATION WITH YOU NOW?

Pretty much that it was a coyote attack after talking to the vet. She told them she was '99.9% sure that it had been a coyote.'

HARD TO BELIEVE.

Well, yes. And you know, the gal, Darlene, who was so helpful to me that day, she talks with everyone around here. She knows the other people who have had problems, but they told her that if it had been a coyote, they don't leave anything. They take it with them. They don't normally leave parts behind.

And when the deputies were here, they were quite sure that it had been someone and not a coyote. And Darlene was saying, 'Well, Animal Control doesn't want to do the paperwork. They'd rather say it's coyote and get it over with. That's what she said other people are saying around here, too. They don't want to go through all the paperwork.'

The most common explanation for half cat mutilations given by authorities to the media is "a coyote kill" without providing hard evidence. The result is that citizens who have suffered the half cat phenomenon are convinced the coyote explanation is nothing more than a way to placate the media and public. Meanwhile, half cat and other unusual animal deaths persist month after month, year after year somewhere on this planet.
