More Encounters with Glowing Humanoids, Green Orbs, Strange Aerial Lights and “Thunderbirds”

“I woke up in the middle of the night and saw three typical “gray” aliens standing in my bedroom. One was standing right next to the bed, glowing a bright azure blue.” - Coast to Coast AM listener

October 30, 2008 Albuquerque, New Mexico - Since my 3-hour news updates on Coast to Coast AM with George Noory radio October 23-24, 2008, about a green, glowing humanoid in a western Pennsylvania forest; pterodactyl-looking “Thunderbirds” soaring over Pennsylvania, Ohio, Tennessee and other American regions; and a beam technology that can lift animals from pastures, I have received a lot of e-mails from listeners provoked by the details of my interviews, which resonate with the listeners' own experiences.

1) Subject: re: Glowing Aliens

Date: October 27, 2008

To: earthfiles@earthfiles.com

I enjoyed hearing you on Coast to Coast AM radio last week (October 23).

You talked about two hunters who saw a floating humanoid form that was glowing greenish. This is similar to an experience I had about three years ago with glowing humanoids.

I woke up in the middle of the night and saw three typical “gray” aliens standing in my bedroom. One was standing right next to the bed. He was glowing a bright azure blue and appeared to be rather immaterial. I could not distinguish features, except for his huge almond-shaped eyes which were shiny black and not glowing. The other two aliens were standing near the doorway into the bedroom. One of them was also glowing blue.

The other alien appeared solid and was putty-colored with the huge black eyes. This one actually seemed to register a look of surprise and dismay that I was awake and seeing them. I heard you mention the man from New York who woke up and saw an alien and then telepathically heard, “Uh-oh, something is wrong here; he sees us and he is not afraid.” I was reminded of the reaction I observed on the face of the alien I saw. It was as though something had gone wrong with their methods. He was dismayed that I had awakened prematurely and had seen them.

At this point I screamed and tried to get away from the aliens, which meant scrambling over my husband who was sleeping next to me. This woke up my husband causing a great commotion, and when I looked back, the aliens were gone. I believe that the glowing aliens were in the process of either materializing or de-materializing in this dimension.

This incident of actually seeing aliens in my bedroom has profoundly changed my world view, as well as my ability to get a decent night's sleep! It's one thing to hear about Whitley Strieber's or someone else's encounters with aliens, but to see them in my own bedroom and realize that I am probably being abducted is entirely another matter. I can't begin to tell you what it is like to live every day with this kind of knowledge.

2) Subject: Lights Over San Diego October 27, 2008 Approx 7:30 PM

Date: October 27, 2008

To: earthfiles@earthfiles.com

Tonight I saw some strange lights over the beach in San Diego at approximately 7:30 PM. I was out running and night had fallen. I ran to the beach and when I arrived at the beach I was rather surprised to see four bright lights hanging over the water, two on the right and two on the left. My first thought was that the planets must be in some strange formation, however after standing there for a few minutes I realized that the three of the four lights didn't look like planets. These three lights were bright orange/yellow in color.

I was at "Dog Beach" in the neighborhood of Ocean Beach in San Diego. I was standing next to the rock jetty. The two lights on my left were bright, however one was white and probably was a planet. They appeared to be to my left just beyond the Ocean Beach pier. On my right the two lights appeared to be on the other side of the San Diego river hovering in front of Pacific Beach. The commercial traffic leaving the San Diego airport flies directly over Dog Beach on takeoff, and then makes a turn over the ocean once they have gained some altitude to head inland toward their destination. Because of the pattern of air-traffic several commercial jetliners flew over me and ABOVE these hovering lights.

I watched the lights carefully because I didn't know what they could be and I wanted to make sure they were not simply aircraft in a holding pattern waiting on permission to land at the airport. I have never seen the San Diego airport park planes over the ocean in a holding pattern, but I have seen planes at night around an airport appear to be stationary lights as they fly toward you with their landing lights on. However, when I have seen the landing lights of planes around airports, if you take the time to watch you will see the lights move as the planes fly toward you or off at an angle away from you. The lights I observed didn't behave that way, they simply hung in the air. Furthermore, these lights were the wrong color, they were an orange/yellow/amber type of color. The appearance of the lights was unlike anything I have seen.

I was watch the lights to my right more because I was sure they were all NOT planets, but some type of aircraft. As I was watch the lights to my right (in front of Pacific Beach) a third light simply came on in-between the other two. The third light was identical to the first two and now there was a row of three lights. After a couple of minutes the light on the end closest to the beach began to move toward land and as it did so the light dimmed and went out to be replaced by much smaller strobing lights of green and red. I watched as the strobing lights flew inland and disappeared. Since traditional aircraft have navigation lights of red and green I was trying to compare the lights I was seeing with the commercial airliners still flying from the airport. The lights looked quite different the unidentified craft was displaying mostly a red flashing light, which should indicate the craft was flying to the left (since the red navigation light is on the left wingtip, however it was flying to the right). I could see separation of the navigation lights indicating that there was a reasonable width between them, like a wing or wide body, not what I would expect to see with a helicopter.

Did I mention there was no sound?

One of the two remaining lights to the right moved off north along the coast. The light on the left remained hovering over the pacific off the end of the pier.

When I left the beach I noticed the moon looked odd. The moon was low on the horizon, just over the trees. There was mist in the direction of the moon, there was a cloud half obscuring the top of the moon. The moon looked odd, it was far brighter than I have ever seen it when close to the horizon and it was a pure white color, not the orange hue it normally has close the horizon. The moon was so bright it was a little painful to look directly at it. I couldn't see any of the features on the moon, it was just a bright full glowing disk with the top partially shrouded by white cloud/mist. It was so low it appeared to be hovering over the main street of Ocean Beach. From where I was standing the moon was to the south. It was only as I was completing my run home that I realized I have never noticed the moon to the south before. Can the moon ever be to the south? I always see it over the mountains to the east, or overhead or over the pacific to the west. When I arrived home I checked the moon phase and for tonight it is only 1% full, it is a new moon, essentially there is very little visible moon tonight... certainly not the enormous full moon I saw. How bizarre, I have no idea what I saw that I thought was the moon, but it was no airplane or street light or planet or star.

I don't know what these lights were, but I thought I would pass the sighting on to you...who else can I tell!

3) Subject: Thunderbird Sighting, Late 1970s, Youngstown, Ohio

Date: October 25, 2008

To: earthfiles@earthfiles.com

Youngstown, Ohio (red circle) is near the western Pennsylvania border northwest of Pittsburgh and Uniontown. Ohio and western Pennsylvania are historically famous for persistent and very high strangeness, including periodic sightings of "Thunderbirds."

I really enjoy all of your reports on coast to coast. I have had only one odd experience or sighting in my life so far. I wish there were more.

But the one was a sighting of a "thunderbird" in Youngstown, Ohio, about 25-30 years ago when I was a kid. Because it was so shocking to me, it is as clear to me today as it was then. It actually looked identical to the picture from your story on the thunderbirds titled "The Ropen." I distinctly remember the long tail trailing behind it.

I haven't told anyone because I haven't understood how I could have seen such an animal, but now since hearing your reports, I am glad to find out that I am not crazy - either that, or I have a lot of people out there just as crazy as I am.

From a map you will notice that Youngstown, Ohio, is in the northeastern part of the state and quite close to western Pennsylvania. I saw it for a good 10 seconds flying over the trees, about 100-200 feet above them. I even followed it when my vision was blocked by the trees, but could not get a visual on it again.

4) Subject: Neon Green Object in Night Sky

Date: October 27, 2008

To: earthfiles@earthfiles.com

On Saturday Oct. 25, at 11:03 PM Pacific, I looked to the left out a sliding glass window and I saw a huge bright neon green light coming down from the sky. It did not fall straight down. It appeared to be a little controlled. I did not hear anything hit the trees. There was not a trail coming from the back like I have seen with meteors. My husband and I did take a walk the next day, but did not find anything. I was wondering if anyone else has reported anything? I was in Whitmore, CA which is about 40 min. from Mt. Lassen.

5) Subject: What is it? Kansas City, MO

Date: October 21, 2008

To: earthfiles@earthfiles.com

At center behind building topped by red lights? Looks like a Flying Hat! This lighting strobe 3 to 4 times. What is that disc thing?

What is the darker, partial disc-like object behind center building in thunderstorm photograph? Fall 2008 in Kansas City, Missouri.
